

The University of Northern British Columbia (UNBC) has held a relationship with the Lake Babine First Nation (LBN) for over twenty years. As an institution of higher learning, UNBC has been privileged to engage in community events, celebrations, and many important initiatives that continue to have positive and meaningful impacts as a result of the UNBC/LBN relationship. The sharing of knowledges and experiences between UNBC and LBN is a remarkable opportunity to honour a genuine relationship that continues to evolve and grow. The establishment of the current Memorandum of Understanding (MOU) between UNBC and LBN is a document that describes and celebrates the mutually respectful, collaborative, and reciprocal UNBC/LBN relationship. UNBC looks forward to many more years of engaging with LBN as we work together in diverse and varying ways.
